HONGKONG OFFICE: 14, DES VUEX ROAD CL.
LONDON OFFICE: 131, FLEET STREET, E.C.

HONGKONG, 15th May, 1901

THE special telegram received yesterday from Shanghai, and published in our columns, has no doubt been read with much interest. The Chinese Government, it is reported, now offer to pay an indemnity of Tls. 450,000,000 in thirty equal annual instalments, including Tls. 10,000,000 from Salt Revenue, Tls. 2,000,000 from native Customs, and Tls. 2,000,000 from lekin. They also stipulate that the Tariff shall be increased. From this it would seem that the Chinese Government at any rate proposes to continue the present pernicious system of two Customs services and to perpetuate the lekin levy. If so, these decisions are to be regretted, and will, we hope, yet be abandoned. According to the N. C. Herald of the 8th inst., if the Chinese Government agree to pay the amount claimed, the troops will be withdrawn from Peking, except the necessary garrison, the Emperor will return and take the reins of government, order will gradually be restored in the North, and trade will resume its beneficent task of smoothing over racial hostilities. The present proposal of the Chinese Government is less than the sum named by the Foreign Ministers, to wit £65,000,000, or roughly Tls. 480,000,000, but it is probable this difference will be bridged without much difficulty, and it is satisfactory to hear that the Foreign Ministers have agreed that any increase of the Tariff is to be conditional on the abolition of lekin on foreign goods. As our Shanghai contemporary says, while this is a step in the right direction, it does not go far enough, because it will leave open a door for endless disputes, arising from mistakes as to what are and are not foreign goods. The Chinese official is so ingenious that if a crack be left through which he can insinuate his way, he will, cockroach-like, flatten himself sufficiently to do so. It is also reported that Sir ROBERT HART proposes to collect the duties at a fixed rate of 6s. 8d. for the Haikwan Tael, which would be equivalent to more than doubling the tariff. If this be the case, the Powers could not consent to the Tariff being raised to 10 per cent. ad valorem, or the duties would be quadrupled. We should think there must be some mistake here. It is gratifying to learn that the Powers have not overlooked the question of the opening of the inland waterways to foreign trade and navigation. This privilege, nominally conceded to Sir CLAUDE MACDONALD, is to be converted into a genuine concession, unfettered by ridiculous stipulations such as those which rendered the opening of the West River a costly and disappointing farce.

If the news given by our Shanghai contemporaries be correct, then the protests recently sent home by the Hongkong and Shanghai Chambers of Commerce will be unnecessary; but it is just as well they were made, for there are still some points to be insisted upon, and in any case it is of the highest importance that the views of the two most important commercial bodies in the Far East should be set clearly forth at a crisis like that which has now arisen in China. The question of internal taxation is so large and difficult that too much attention cannot be paid to it at the present moment. The British Minister will no doubt redeem the promise made by his predecessor Sir CLAUDE MACDONALD to the Chambers of Commerce at Hongkong and Shanghai, to afford them the chance of expressing their opinions on the revision of Tariff before agreeing as to any details, and there will be no great difficulty in obtaining a fairly unanimous one as to the desirability of abolishing the barrier and customs stations and consolidating the numerous imposts into one duty, which shall frank the goods to any destination. It is by this means alone that the large increase in the Tariff can be justified, and by this means, too, that trade can be developed with the interior markets, now practically closed to foreign goods. Perhaps these remarks may prove a little premature, for no agreement has yet been actually arrived at, but it is encouraging to note that it is within something like measurable distance, and we trust that it will not be long before an actual basis of settlement is come to. The fact that the Chinese Imperial Court is expected to arrive at Kaifeng-fu next month would seem to point to a belief that a modus vivendi will be found before then. The Court will not, we may be sure, tarry longer than necessary at Kaifeng; the Emperor is reported to be extremely anxious to get back to Peking with as little delay as possible.

On Monday night the British gunboat Lizard left for Canton, and the German hospital-ship Wittelsbach for Singapore.

During the 24 hours ending at noon yesterday there were reported 14 fresh cases of plague (13 Chinese, one other Asiatic), with 13 deaths (all Chinese).

Mr. Hawkes, the third victim to plague amongst the Hongkong Dispensary staff, is reported to be doing well, and hopes are entertained of his recovery.

The last rainstorm has done considerable damage to building operations in the Colony. Two or three blocks in course of erection at Tsim Sha Tsui have suffered to a very large extent.

Sir John Carrington, C.M.G., Chief Justice, was still unable to attend court yesterday. It was stated, however, that he was recovering from his slight indisposition, and probably would be able to reach the court this morning.

The Public Works Department have added another overseer to their waterworks staff in the person of Mr. J. H. Barrington, who came out from Chester by the Isabell Maru. He was foreman millwright at Messrs. Crossley & Sons, of Manchester, for many years.

Japanese papers state that Prince Ching and Li Hung-chang have applied to Field-Marshal Waldersee to stop the so-called punitive expedition, composed of French and Germans, to Foching-fu, as the expedition will have the effect of further prolonging the stay of the Imperial Court at Hsian-fu.

The night before last a ricksha-coolie, having for his fare one of the engineers of the steamer Empress of Japan, drove his vehicle right over the harbour wall near Blake pier. Fortunately a European policeman was near-by and hooked both coolie and fare out, but not until both were well-nigh exhausted. "The ricksha of course went to the bottom."

It is reported that threatening placards of the Big Knife Society against Christians have been posted at Nanking, and that one was even stuck up on the gate of the British Consulate.

The Mercury understands that Mr. G. Dietrich, Acting Commissioner of Customs at Tientsin, has resigned his connection with the Customs Service, and that his place is to be taken by Mr. A. E. Hippisley.

In the list of winning owners at the Shanghai Races last week, Mr. Toeg came first with 3 firsts and 3 seconds, followed by Mr. Duplex (3 firsts), Mr. G. H. Potts (2 firsts, 4 seconds, 1 third), and Mr. Kanook (2 firsts, 3 seconds, 1 third).

The C. N. S. Taihung, which left Hankow on the 7th inst., and has arrived at Shanghai, reported seeing the following men-of-war at the various river ports:—H.M.S. Brisk, the German gunboat Tiger, and a Japanese gunboat at Hankow; H.M.S. Plover and the French cruiser Amiral Charner at Kiukiang; H.M.S. Bramble at Wuhu; H.M.S. Goliath and the German battleship Werk at Nanking; and H.M.S. Argonaut at Chinkiang.

We note that there was a Wagner Concert at the Gordon Hall, Tientsin, on the 3rd ult., given by the band of the 3rd Ostasiatische (Infantry) Regiment. The critic of the P. & T. Times says:—"For us there was but one discordant note, and that was furnished by one or two persons, who would converse when they should be letting other people listen." Tientsin being now so fashionable a place, these people evidently imagined that they were at the Opera.

The Japanese papers seem mostly of opinion that the Russian Government, having included the damages in Manchuria in its claim from China, will be compelled to move in concert with the Powers in the evacuation of Chinese territory. A Mainichi telegram says:—"It is reported that Russia will introduce the Manchurian question at the conference of the foreign Ministers in Peking as reported previously. Two or three of the powers are conferring together about the matter, and there seems to be no doubt that it will be brought forward in the way indicated shortly."

The Peking correspondent of the N. C. Daily News telegraphed on the 7th inst.:—"The Foreign Ministers to-day agreed to inform the Chinese Plenipotentiaries of the amount of the indemnities to be asked for. They also agreed to stipulate for the abolition of lekin, the establishment of the tariff on a gold basis, the free navigation of the inland waters of China, and the removal of the obstacles presented by the bars at Wosung and Taku. They are not agreed as to the opening of the whole of China freely to foreign trade. Sir Ernest Satow objects to this as long as extra-territoriality obtains."

A Tokyo telegram, dated the 3rd inst., says:—"The import duties at Newchwang are levied at the rate settled by treaty with China at present, and Russia is not able to levy a higher duty. When the place was first occupied by the Russians, their officials hoisted the Russian flag over the Customs, but it was eventually hauled down owing to a joint protest by the Powers. The Russians issued a regulation in which it was stated that one Russian official would serve in the local customs. No protest was raised by the Powers and a Russian official has been serving in the Customs since. The revenues of the Customs belong to the Chinese Government as a matter of fact; but it is not definitely known now where the money goes to."

According to northern native papers, the place and manner of future audiences at Peking has now been settled. Formerly the Ministers were received in the Hall of Tributary Nations, or some other subsidiary hall, anywhere rather than in any hall which would seem to admit the equality of foreign nations. Henceforth a salon must be held in the Main Hall, such as the Pao Ho Tien or Kan Ching Tien. The Emperor must provide chairs to meet and escort the Ministers. Banquets must also be given only in the places used for such purposes by the Chinese Princes and Ministers, and not as formerly in some inferior building. A Peking letter says the total indemnity is 450 millions, to be paid by the 15th of the 5th moon. But if the Allies can withdraw earlier, then for each day so saved they will abate 800 or 900 thousand taels, as an inducement to China to hasten the peace, and so save paying such a very large indemnity.

We have received the annual report of the Tungking Medical Missionary College. It is stated therein that the number of out-patients compared with that of the year before shows a diminution of over 6,000 patients. 13,779 patients (4,242 new patients and 9,537 return visits) were seen on 140 consultation days, giving an average of 98 for each day. 330 in-patients were treated in the wards, 905 operations performed and 36 home-visits paid. In December patients again began to fill the wards, and on the last day of the year 32 in-patients with 17 servants were under the roof. Speaking of the troubles of last year the report says:—"On the 3rd of August the Civil Mandarin of Tungking ordered all missionaries of this district to leave as soon as possible for a safer place on the coast, as he could not protect them any longer. Our native Christians felt themselves safer here when the Europeans were away. So we started for Hongkong on the 6th instant, leaving the work in the hands of our native staff, who bravely carried it on, even when two months later the Roman Catholic and American Presbyterian chapels at Sheklung, the neighbouring town, were destroyed." The Mission returned to its station on the 21st October.

Mr. Alec Marshall's last evening concert at Shanghai is announced to come off on Thursday next.

The remains of the late Mr. Charles Dowdall, who was drowned in the wreck of the Rio de Janeiro, are being taken to Shanghai for interment.

Prince Ibrahim, a cousin of the Khedive of Egypt, has been staying in Japan on his way home by the C.P.R. from Ceylon, where he has been shooting elephants.

It appeared from the enquiry into the death of the Russian officer at Tientsin that a German soldier on police duty on the night in question tried to arrest two Russian naval officers, who were drunk, and whose rank he could not make out. The officers resisted, and the deceased tried to run his sword through the German soldier, whereupon the latter fired at the Russian officer, causing his immediate death.

According to Lieutenant W. C. Davidson, of the United States Navy, who writes of operations in North China last year, the Japanese army was far ahead of all others in organisation, discipline, endurance, equipment, and second to none in fighting. The detail to which their organisation was perfected could be seen on the battlefield, where their ammunition supply was so perfect that, besides looking after themselves, they still had time to assist the British and Americans in bringing ammunition from the city for the troops under fire. The Americans wounded can testify to the efficiency of the Japanese Field Hospital Corps at Tientsin, even when the Japanese loss was over 18 per cent of the troops engaged. After the first day's fighting the Japanese were the only troops with any energy left. So badly were the Allies beaten that day that with an energetic foe they would have been annihilated.

The N. C. Daily Press, commenting on the Spring Meeting at Shanghai, says:—"An innovation that was very successful was the introduction of a couple of horse-races each day, and there are not wanting those who predict that we shall soon come back to the programmes of the early sixties, when nearly all the races were for horses. It is pointed out that a Water can be got up here nowadays for Tls. 240 or so that can make better time than a China pony costing a good deal more; and the China pony if he turns out a failure has to be sold for a song, while the Water is always worth his cost as a hack for riding or in a carriage. Old residents ask why, if the China pony superseded the horse before, he should not do it again; and the reply is that horses are to be obtained from Australia now very much more easily and cheaply than in the old days, while the China pony is very much more costly than he was then. The disadvantage of going back to horse-races is, that it puts the races again so much in the power of the long purse. This can be avoided by over confining the horse-races to subscription on horses distributed by lot."

THE DUMPING OF DEAD BODIES IN THE STREETS.

PREVENTIVE MEASURES.

This matter was fully discussed at a recent meeting of the Sanitary Board, and numerous suggestions were offered as to the means that should be adopted to put an effectual stop to this method of the poorer Chinese of getting rid of what in the majority of instances prove to be plague cases. The practice, as has been pointed out, makes the tracing of the source of infection an utter impossibility, and so the health of the community is endangered through the criminal neglect of ignorant Chinese, who prefer to harbour disease to reporting an outbreak to the sanitary authorities and having their houses disinfected. Disinfection is abhorred by the lower-class natives, and in order to teach them that the dumping of dead will not ensure immunity from it, one member of the Board suggested that a certain number of houses within a limited area of the spot where a body was picked up should be disinfected. Another member advised the infliction of fines upon all householders within the area, a third the stationing of watchmen at street-corners, a fourth the doubling of the rates for the quarter, and so on. The recommendation of Dr. Clark, Medical Officer of Health, was that a number of soldiers—men from one of the Indian regiments stationed in the Colony—should be enrolled as special constables to patrol the streets at night. At the last special meeting of the Sanitary Board it was intimated that the recommendation had been approved, and yesterday morning, at the Magistracy, twenty-five non-commissioned officers and men of the Royal Welch Fusiliers and seventy-five non-commissioned officers and men of the Hongkong and Singapore Battalion Royal Artillery, making altogether a total of one hundred men, were sworn in as special constables. Their term of service is for three months, and their duties are to patrol the streets from 10 p.m. till 6 a.m. and prevent the dumping of dead bodies thereon. The step is an important one, and while it can hardly fail to achieve the end for which it has been taken, it may, incidentally, serve, by simplifying the work of the sanitary authorities, to diminish the chances of a further serious spreading of plague.

THE PORTS AND THE FOREIGN POST OFFICES.

The Ports have sent a third Note to the Ambassadors of the Powers peremptorily demanding the suppression of the Foreign Post Offices. This Note has also been returned to the Ports, thus creating partially a cessation of official relations between the Embassies and the Ports.

London, 12th May.

ANOTHER RUSSIAN LOAN.

An Imperial Ukase, issued at St. Petersburg, authorises a loan of 424 millions francs, bearing interest at four per cent. to repay Treasury advances to the railway, and to meet current expenditure.

RUSSIA AND CHINA.

It is stated that Russia is seeking to obtain a joint guarantee from the Powers for a Chinese indemnity loan. The majority of the Powers are opposed thereto.

THE PORTS AND THE FOREIGN POST OFFICES.

The Ports shows no signs of yielding in its demands for the suppression of the Foreign Post Offices. The Ambassadors are completely agreed as to the necessity for determined action.

London, 12th May.

THE NEW RUSSIAN LOAN.

The statement that the French House of Messrs. Rothschild will issue the new Russian loan is confirmed. The arrangement is the result of M. Delcasse's visit to St. Petersburg.

SPURIOUS MILK IN THE COLONY.

HEAVY SEIZURE BY THE SANITARY BOARD.

A large number of cases of spurious condensed milk have been seized by the Sanitary Board, and, we believe, another heavy confiscation is to follow. For the past two years bad condensed milk has been placed upon the market, and already there have been proceedings both civil and criminal taken in respect of infringement of certain well-known condensed milk trade-marks. This, the latest discovery, has come not at all too soon, for it is well known that the milk is sold to ice-cream vendors at the rate of from 2 to 3 cents a tin, whereas the market prices vary from 20 to 45 cents, according to brands. Whether the present seizure is portion of a consignment imported in the usual way and become putrid by time, or whether it is the production of dishonest local traders, remains yet to be seen. Certain it is that large quantities of it have been sold, and is now being used by residents. Evidence has already been obtained that cases have gone off to itinerant vendors of ice-cream, who parade our streets, and number of small shopkeepers are exhibiting tins of milk bearing the same label as a well-known brand on the market. In connection with this seizure we learn that there are other commodities, equally as spurious upon the market to-day, and equally as injurious to the public health. Quantities of tainted butter, fruit, jams, fish, etc., are exposed for sale within the colony, which it would be as well to seize and destroy. We trust that the Sanitary Board, now that they have put their hands to the plough in this direction, will not turn back, and, if, on analysis, the milk now in their charge should turn out to be so injurious as to endanger the public health, they will at once take vigorous steps to prosecute those whose evil intention it was to palm it off upon a too-confiding public as a wholesome food.

SUPREME COURT.

Tuesday, 14th May.

IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

BEFORE HIS HONOUR A. G. WISE (JUDGE).

CAPT. P. S. PRIMROSE v. UN LAI CHUEN. This was a motion brought by the plaintiff (on the original summons) to recover the sum of $633.35, being, as he alleged, the amount of his salary and disbursements as from the 30th April, 1901, to the end of May, 1901, as damages for wrongful dismissal.

Mr. Hastings (Messrs. Deacon and Hastings) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. J. Hays (Messrs. Johnson, Stokes and Master) represented the defendant.

In opening Mr. Hastings, by consent, amended his claim by adding, at the one side of the particulars of the claim the master's pay from $600 to $200, and on the other side adding $750 as "damages for wrongful dismissal 24 months' wages in lieu of notice," and $72 as paid wages of steward, three boys, and a cook for March. His Honour consented to the amendment, and the claim stood as $1,455.23, but in order to bring the amount within the Court's Jurisdiction the sum of $55.23 was waived.

In stating his case Mr. Hastings said his client was a master-mariner, and had been so for many years. The defendant was the owner of the steamer Telemachus, which he had lately purchased, and which was formerly one of the Blue Funnel boats. The plaintiff was engaged by the defendant as master of the vessel from the 1st December last at a salary of $250 for three months, and $8 0 after that period, if the ship was navigated successfully. He engaged the crew and signed the usual articles. Indeed he made several voyages from Hongkong to Saigon and the Philippines, and everything went well. He returned to this Colony from his last voyage to Saigon on April 19th last, and on the next morning at 8 o'clock, Capt. Williamson went on board, and presented Capt. Primrose with a letter in which he was requested to hand over command of the steamer to the bearer. On receipt of the communication, of course, Capt. Primrose immediately completed his necessary business and left the ship. He at once went to the defendant and asked the reason of his dismissal.

His Honour: What was the trouble? Opium? Mr. Hastings: No trouble at all. We have not been able to find out. My client asked the reason, and could receive no satisfactory reply. He even asked for a discharge and a character, and they were refused him. Now, I submit that the master of a ship is in the position of every other person engaged as a servant, and in fact in a much higher position than a clerk, who is entitled to a reasonable notice of dismissal, and it is for your Lordship to say what reasonable notice of dismissal my client is entitled to in this case. An ordinary clerk is entitled to three months' notice. I submit the captain of a steamship is, in a very much higher position, and is, in fact, entitled to a much longer notice, but at all events, within the time we have claimed the three months only. The rest of the claim is the ordinary captain's account which has been paid month by month, and which I shall show your Lordship is that usually paid by owners to master-mariners for disbursements on board their ships.

Capt. Primrose said that his engagement with the defendant was made on the 1st December last, when it was arranged that he should receive $250 for the first three months, and $800 a month after that. He engaged the crew, and prepared the vessel for her voyage. No complaints were made as to his conduct, or anything connected with the ship. He arrived here on 19th April from Saigon, and the next morning he had an order to leave the ship. He called at the office subsequently and asked the reason for his dismissal. He saw the manager who said that the defendant was away at Canton. He was told that no reason could be given. He asked the manager for a discharge, and the latter said he could not do anything in the matter while the owner was away at Canton. However he never got his discharge.

Cross-examined: Mr. Bay was present at the time when the agreement was made, and he was engaged for an indefinite period. He had been captain of a ship of the same size as the Telemachus, and one which may be 200 or 300 tons smaller. Previous to joining the vessel he was in Government employ, which he resigned in order to take the command, but he was not by any means keen on the job. His engagement in terms was $250 a month for three months and after that $800. He had spent $40 in ricksha-hire in Saigon, and had been allowed him in previous months. Certainly he took a ricksha and pair on going to town, and that was customary. Sometimes he went to the agents twice or three times a day; indeed, whenever called for.

Mr. Hays: During the time you were in that ship, was any alteration made by you in the load line?

Plaintiff: Yes! I had it shifted to its proper position. It was on my return from Saigon to the Philippines.

Mr. Hays: Why did you alter the load-line? Plaintiff: Because it was a false load-line, and I was afraid of getting into trouble with the authorities here. I made the discovery that it was four inches above the Board of Trade mark after a return from Cebu, and after I had been in a galley with the vessel loaded down to her mark. It made a matter of 84 tons dead weight to her. The higher mark might have been put on when she was in the dock.

Mr. Hays: Did you consider that when you got this notice of dismissal it was on account of this alteration of the load line?

Plaintiff: No! If I had not done so it would have meant a big fine for the owners.

Mr. Hays: Was it not detrimental to the owners of the vessel to have the load-line shifted in that way?

Plaintiff: In a way. They lost in cargo 21 tons to every voyage, but it was a false load-line, and it was likely when the ship was loaded, to endanger its safety.

Mr. Hays: Was it not a serious offence to shift the load-line?

Plaintiff: It was a much more serious offence to have it in the wrong place.

Mr. Hays: Master said he was the second officer of the Telemachus at the time the load line was shifted. He had known the plaintiff for the past seven years, had sailed with him for five years, and knew him to be an efficient marine officer.

Cross-examined: It was the captain and mate who found that the load-line was false, through the bad weather we had on the voyage to Cebu. He (witness) altered the mark himself, and he did so because they had found by scripping the Board of Trade mark was four inches below the painted one.

Mr. Hays: Do you not know that in altering the load-line you were taking a great risk upon yourself?

Witness: No! It was done by the Board of Trade.

Mr. Hays: How do you know whether it was not done by John Brown?

Witness: Because John Brown would not put in with a hammer and chisel (laughter). For the defence the Chinese character was called. He said he had a great objection to the captain altering the load-line, because by that he lost cargo.

Mr. Hastings: Then you prefer to run this steamer with a false load-line and endanger the lives of those on board, so that you can get a higher cargo, and you dismiss this British Captain without any notice because he found the true load-line?

Witness: Yes, I dismissed him because he did not tell me before.

Mr. Hastings: And you think that's a proper way to treat the captain of a British ship, do you?

Witness: He should have told me before.

Mr. Ray, ship broker, deposed to having negotiated the sale of the s.s. Telemachus, and was present when the engagement for service was made between the plaintiff and the defendant. His idea was that although Captain Primrose wanted $300 a month for three months' service, the reply of the defendant was "Well see about that."

His Honour in delivering judgment remarked that the plaintiff was perfectly justified in shifting the load-line of the steamer as he did. If he had not done so he might have got into very serious trouble either in the Harbour Office or at the Police Court. There would be judgment for the plaintiff on the amended account for $805.25, and costs.

POLICE COURT.

Tuesday, 14th May.

BEFORE MR. HAZELAND.

HEAVY OPIUM FINES.

Ho Wa, a Stanley shopkeeper, pleaded guilty to the unlawful possession of twenty tins of raw opium, six tins of prepared opium, and four tins of opium dross, and was fined $150, which he paid.

Tan Shi, farmer, 119, Wing Lok Street, was charged with the unlawful possession of twelve tins and six mace of prepared opium on the 13th inst. The defendant denied the charge, but was convicted on the evidence of an excise officer and fined $250, or two months' hard labour. He went to prison.

BEFORE MR. KEMP.

A DODGE THAT FAILED.

Two barbers and a tailor (Chinese) had a difference of opinion in Queen Street late on Monday night, and from words got to pulling one another about and shouting. A district watchman heard the row and approached, whereupon one of the noisy trio set up a cry of "Thief," and explained to the watchman that they had had a scuffle with a burglar, who, however, had managed to get away.

The watchman had his own ideas regarding the affair, and took the three to the police station, where he charged them with being disorderly.

They were fined $2 and bound over in $25 each to keep the peace for three months.

BOOTS AND VAGABOND.

Chan Ng, of no occupation, or address, was found skulking about the streets in the western district the other night by a Chinese constable, and asked to give an explanation regarding himself. He could not, and was taken to the lock up. On being searched, nothing but a twenty-cent piece was found in his pockets, and it was a bad one.

The magistrate found him to be a rogue and vagabond, and sent him to prison for 14 days, with hard labour.

INCIDENTS.

Tong Yun, a boy of fifteen, entered a coolie house on Tuesday morning to see what he could pick up. There were two rooms in the house, the smaller one the cubicle of a foreman coolie. Seeing nothing to tickle his fancy in the large room, Tong Yun climbed the partition into the cubicle, and rolled some clothing and a blanket into a bundle. He tucked this under his arm, and was on the point of leaving when the occupant of the cubicle, who had been watching him, arrested the thief, and handed him into custody.

The magistrate gave him six weeks in which to reform.

HOCKEY.

KOWLOON V. THE WORLD.

This match, which came off at Kowloon on Saturday last, 11th inst., before quite a large gathering of spectators, including not a few ladies, resulted after a very fast match in favour of the home team by 7 goals to 2. The match was, however, much more closely contested than this result would show, and had the visitors been more accustomed to the fastness of the Kowloon ground the result would have, doubtless, been very different. During the afternoon, through the kindness of Col. Ballie and the officers, the band of the 22nd Bombay Infantry enlivened the proceedings by an excellent selection of music.

HONGKONG VOLUNTEER CORPS.

"A" MACHINE GUN CO.

The second competition of the present series took place at Kowloon on the 12th inst., when Gunner Blason scored his first win on the No. 1 Cup, and also set in the best contribution towards the No. 2 Cup.

The very satisfactory weather prevailing during the competition accounts for the poor scores returned, especially at the 500 yards range.

The following were the best scores:—

Gunner Blason	200 400 500 H. cap. Tl.
Corporal Plummer	25 24 15 25 32
Captain Sanders	30 32 17 13 32
Gunner Edwards	23 31 14 11 79
Sergeant Burdett	18 31 12 16 77
	25 19 16 17 77

TRADE AT NEWCHWANG.

Messrs. Bandinel & Co. write to us from Newchwang under date 4th May:—

Production is arriving more freely by rail and river. Approximate stocks are—Beans, 120,000 piculs ashore, 15,000 piculs afloat; beanseeds 300,000 piculs; bean oil, 20,000 piculs.

Besides this there are 1,500,000 piculs beans at Teekling, and still more at Tanchangwang, waiting for boats; and 800 boats, with say 100,000 piculs, are expected to arrive here about the 20th inst.

Prices are consequently lower, we quote:—

Bean Oil per picul	The 5.30 strong
Beans per 100 Yellow	5.40 weak
Beans per 100 Yellow	5.26 to 5.70
Green	4.80
Black	5.00 to 4.35

Freights are dull, but we anticipate a good demand for shipping in another ten days.

NORTHERN NOTES.

The following items are from the P. & T. Times of the 4th inst.:—

Barracks for 2,000 troops are now being erected adjoining the British Legation.

The late Viceroy Yu Lu has been posthumously degraded and deprived of all rank and honours.

The Germans have completed the bridge at Hanku, and trains may possibly be able to run across next week.

All the new engines except four have now been set up at the Tengkou works, and several are now in daily use.

From the 1st instant, mails ceased to have a special military escort by rail, and are now in charge of the postal officials.

The Military Authorities are, we hear, moving up the autumn junk along the Peiho which impedes traffic at various points.

Almost every night the foreign posts along the line of communication have a more or less successful scrap with brigands, and we hear Major Duncanson has been very successful in killing and capturing a number of these rascals.

Admiral Seymour went up to Tientsin direct from Tientsin on the 2nd inst., being met en route at Tientsin Station by General Lorne Campbell. He was accompanied by Capt. Craddock.

Many of the well-to-do Chinese in Peking are buying whatever treasure and valuables they have as they say they hear the foreign troops are to be withdrawn and Chinese troops will take their place, and having suffered already at the hands of the Boxers and foreign troops, they prefer not to take any chances with the Chinese rebels.

The Je Je explains that Tung Fushiang is still in Ning-sha, and that the reason the report has been circulated that he is going to join Russia is due to the unceasing activity of his troops. He is, however, really keeping them well drilled in obedience to the Dowager's orders, as he may require them at any moment. We give this for what it is worth.

The Recreation Ground was the scene of an impressive and pretty ceremony on Thursday morning last, when the whole of the British troops in the garrison were paraded to do honour to three of our Tientsin ladies—Mrs. Bellingham, Mrs. Droste and Miss Bourne. The parade was held at 10 a.m., when Major-General Lorne Campbell, accompanied by his Staff, escorted the ladies to the centre of a square, addressed a few appropriate remarks to them, pinned the medals on, and escorted them to the waiting-limousines, after which the troops marched past to the strains of the Band of the Hongkong Regiment. After the purely military function was over, the ladies had a very warm reception from their civilian neighbours on the Pavilion.

JAPAN AND RUSSIA.

The Nagasaki Press of the 3rd inst. has the following:—

News received from an authoritative source from Vladivostok states that the Russian military authorities at the above port have been advised officially from St. Petersburg that the Russian Government has made overtures to Japan, offering the latter the ports of Dalny and Port Arthur in the event of Japan offering no opposition to the acquisition by Russia of an "ice-free port" in Corea. In connection with the matter, the names of Masampo and Port Lazareff are mentioned. From the same source we learn that all building operations both at Port Arthur and Dalny have been suspended by order of the Russian Government, which is presumably awaiting Japan's reply. That Japan is preparing for any Russian move on Corea would seem to be evidenced by the fact that the Army reserves are being called up. We learn that many reserve officers in this city have been requested to report themselves at once to Hiroshima.

Our Nagasaki contemporary says with reference to the above:—"There is reason to believe that the news appearing in another column is of a reliable and trustworthy nature. The identity of the individual who brought the information to this port we are not at liberty to disclose, but we may state he holds high official rank in Vladivostok."

THE SITUATION IN COREA.

The following Japanese telegrams throw some further light on the loan question and the position of Mr. McLeary Brown:—

Tokyo, 1st May.—Mr. Hayashi, Japanese Minister to Seoul, has reported to the Foreign Department that he has received in audience by the Korean Emperor on the 22nd inst. He did not lodge a protest against the loan affair; but only reiterated the details and particulars. It is probable that Mr. Hayashi told the Emperor or what his unofficial view was. The Japanese Government is examining the contract. It is reported that they have found several suspicious points, although the contract on paper seems to be void of political significance. Great Britain, America and Japan, who are opposed to the loan, are understood to be in communication with each other regarding the affair. There are several British shareholders in the Yunnan Syndicate, and the British attitude in the affair is reported to be indifferent so long as the Customs revenue is not touched. The position of Mr. McLeary Brown is left alone. The British Minister to Seoul is waiting for further instructions from London. Mr. McLeary Brown has taken no action in the affair.—Mainichi.

Tokyo, 3rd May.—Regarding the alleged demand of the Korean Government to Mr. McLeary Brown to give up control of the Customs business, the Japanese authorities state that the Korean Government called upon the Commissioner of Customs to give up his official residence in April last without giving him any notice but a verbal one. The British Acting Minister to Seoul lodged a strong protest against it with the Korean Government, and the matter was dropped for the time being. Recently, however, the Korean Government sent an official document of a decisive nature to the British Acting Minister to Seoul and demanded the transfer of the Customs business and the surrender of the official residence of Mr. McLeary Brown. Mr. Brown's engagement does not expire for five years; but the Korean Government is using all possible means to compel him to leave the Korean service. The recent demand for the surrender of the Customs business is probably intended to enrage Mr. Brown to such an extent that he will throw up his position.—Mainichi.

Seoul, 3rd May.—Mr. Hayashi, Japanese Minister to Seoul, was received in audience by the Korean Emperor yesterday. The Minister was accompanied by Captain Iwasaki, Commander of the cruiser Tokugawa.—Mainichi.

Tokyo, 3rd May.—The Korean Government has sent a demand to the British Minister to Seoul for the surrender of the residence of Mr. McLeary Brown and the Customs business within a given number of days. The Minister has taken up a strong attitude.—Asahi.

THE CABINET CRISIS IN JAPAN.

It is now plain that although the original difference of opinion between Viscount Watanabe and his colleagues was adjusted, a new difference subsequently arose, culminating in the crisis of the 2nd instant. At the outset the Minister of Finance proposed, not to defer the progress of certain State undertakings, but to abandon them altogether for the present. Against that project the other members of the Cabinet protested vehemently. They were quite ready to agree that if the Treasury found itself without funds, and if the plan of domestic loans could not be carried into operation owing to stringency in the money market, corresponding adjustments should be made. But they were strongly opposed to anything like a radical change of the post-bellum programme. Viscount Watanabe appears to have made a concession to those objections, and to have agreed that the works should not be suspended, but merely delayed. Thus the threatened crisis seemed to have been averted. But the question of next year's Budget then came up for discussion, and it transpired that Viscount Watanabe had never entertained any idea of abandoning his principle. On the contrary, he considered that in modifying his proposal, so far as the current fiscal year was concerned, he had secured its operation in subsequent years. In other words, while continuing the works on a reduced scale until 31st March, 1902, he looked forward to suspending them indefinitely after that date. He did not deny the beneficial character of the works or the advantages they would confer on the State, but he held that until the domestic money market should become easy enough to permit the floating of loans, all expenditures demanding such a course should be curtailed, and he further argued that a foreign loan was not to be thought of, inasmuch as to make further appeals to foreign markets would be a disgrace to Japan. Thus once more a gulf was found to be between the Minister of Finance and the other members of the Cabinet. The latter being quite determined that the country's progress must not be arrested, and being also convinced that by a little management the financial difficulty could be overcome since the surplus revenue already flowing into the Treasury, and that which will by and by accrue from new and increased taxes passed by the Diet last session, would afford ample means to prosecute, if even on a reduced scale, the productive enterprises to which the State has put its hand. Viscount Watanabe, however, declined to listen to any of these arguments. He maintained his ground with singular resolution, and finally Marquis Ito cut the knot by resigning, his example being followed by all the other Ministers, including the Ministers of War and of the Navy, but excluding Viscount Watanabe, who, true to his resolution, stands completely isolated, and refuses to resign until he has submitted to the Emperor a full statement of his financial reasons.—Japan Mail.

EAST CHINA STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

A despatch has been received at the Foreign Office from H.M. Consul-General at Odessa, forwarding translation of an article which appeared in the Odessa Listok on the subject of the East China Steam Navigation Company, a shipping undertaking intended to work in connection with the East China Railway in pushing Russian trade in Eastern Asia. The article states that the ocean-going steam navigation company of the East China Railway established in 1899, is a subsidiary undertaking of the East China Railway, and is mainly intended to bring freight to the railway and to help the disposal of Russian goods in the Amur Territory, in China, Japan, and Corea. With the opening of regular traffic on the line, the steamers of the company commenced to run, adapting themselves to the time tables of the trains.

The administration of steamers which is established near Tientsin-Wan opened agencies at Vladivostok, Nikolaievsk on the Amur, Dnie, on Saghalien, Nagasaki, Chefoo, Newchwang, Shanghai, Chemulpo, Petropavlovsk, Possiet, Tientsin, Hongkong, Gensan, Fusan, Hakodate, De Castries and Port Arthur. The Steam Navigation Company has coaling stations at Port Arthur, Chefoo, and Nagasaki. The agents of the Company are everywhere Russians, with the exception of those at the ports of Shanghai, Hongkong, Nagasaki and Hakodate, where they are natives. On beginning their Company's business, the vessels of the East China Steam Navigation Company were to consist of a fleet of steamers and seven barges and seven steamships: Sibirian, Ninguta, Sungari, Inhai, Girin, Mukden and Tsitsihar. The three last named steamers carry cargo only, and are constructed so as to be able to take on board complete locomotives fully fitted. The steamer Sibirian was towing barges, and the remaining three were plying regularly between Port Arthur, Chefoo, Nagasaki, Shanghai and Vladivostok. Last year, two steamers specially equipped for work in the Okhotsk Sea were prepared at Europe six steamers, of which two will be fast running, each having accommodation for 90 cabin passengers and 300 between deck berths. These steamers will be completed in the course of two or three months, and will ply regularly between Port Arthur, Tientsin-Wan and Nagasaki. The remainder will work along the Siberian coast. Thus in the current year the Company will possess 15 steamers having a registered capacity of 19,300 tons and accommodation for 500 cabin and 4,250 between-deck passengers.

LOUIS DE ROUGE-MONT.

After the exposure of Louis de Rouge-Mont, the "great explorer," made by the Daily Chronicle about three years ago, it might have been expected that he would retire from public life. According to an exchange, Mr. de Rouge-Mont is still anxious to become famous. He was specially engaged to lecture in Australia recently, and there was a crowded house to receive him. But whether the spirit of St. Patrick's eye upset the temper of the audience or not is uncertain. Strolling on to the boards, garbed in the regulation evening-dress, the lecturer was assailed with loud cries of "Ananias," and "What price this lecture, my boy?" His masterly attempt to start his lecture, but to no purpose, a few remarks on coral and pearls being all one could hear. He referred to something 75 feet long, but whether it was a coral-branch or a pearl it is impossible to say. By this time the noise was deafening, and Mr. L. de Rouge-Mont beat a hasty retreat to the wings, having probably made his last attempt to address an Australian audience on the subject of his adventures amongst the wild tribes, who, according to his own account, inhabit the vast region of comparatively unexplored country forming the north-west part of that island or continent.

It happened in one of the hill villages, and the church in which it occurred is localised to this day. Upon one memorable occasion the clerk gave notice to the assembled worshippers to the following effect:—"There'll be no service in the church for m'appen a matter of lower weeks, as parson's hen is sitting in th' pulpit."

MR. PIERPONT MORGAN.

The Daily Mail gives the following account of Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan as he landed from the White Star liner Titanic on the 11th ult.:—

Mr. Morgan is the author of the billion dollar steel trust, which is to crush the British iron and steel industries, and of a few other smaller million-pound trusts which are to crumple up the industries of other countries. Naturally there was an eager and reverent crowd waiting on the landing-stage to witness his coming. According to general practice, the passengers were not allowed to land until the port authorities had barked the vessel and the mails and passengers' baggage had been landed. But an exception was made in favour of the multi-millionaire, and as soon as the gangway had been placed in position Mr. Morgan walked down in company of one of the ship's officials.

Mr. Pierpont Morgan does not look in the least like Mr. Pierpont Morgan. His brow is not clothed in thunder, nor do sovereignty and power express themselves in his mien. He does not jingle as he walks, nor does the radiance of diamonds encircle him. He is just a quick-looking, elderly gentleman with certain masterful expression on his rugged features, who walked down the gangway dressed in brown clothes and a blue tie, holding a paper-wrapped parcel under his arm. There was no brass band, and the people did not bow right and left. There was not even any one to meet him. Nor did he take the slightest notice of the waiting crowd, but strode with slow step and impassive face across the landing-stage and up the incline to the riverside station, where a private saloon attached to the special Eastern train was in waiting for him. There he became busy.

The managing agent of the company had carried aboard for him a bundle of telegrams and cables, and these he proceeded to read and to answer. A group of eager newspaper men had endeavoured to get a word with him. He strode past them with a shake of the head. When he had finished his correspondence he walked along the platform to the telegraph office and handed in his wires. Then a Daily Mail representative had a conversation with him, consisting of about seventeen words, with which the master of millions contented, with a very good grace, considerably less than his share.

At Queenstown he had told a representative that he would not say anything until he got to Liverpool. Now he remarked that he would reserve anything he had to say until he got to London. He did not disclose what he had brought in his brown-paper parcel, nor whether he proposed to endow any free libraries, nor what were his hopes and intentions with regard to the world's steel supply. But with respect to the statement that he is taking over, among other enterprises, the Panama Canal, he remarked that he knew nothing about it, and was not responsible for such things getting into the papers. After that he got into his saloon, which was cut off from communication with the rest of the corridor train. The price of this privacy was that he was cut off from communication with the excellent restaurant car, and had to be content at luncheon time with a railway luncheon-basket.

At Euston a group of representatives of American newspapers were waiting for him. There were also his two little grandchildren, with their father, Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, jun., and several other relatives and friends. The Daily Mail representative was on the point of holding him to his promise to talk on his arrival in London, but the sight of this tall, gaunt man of millions with a tiny child holding on to each forefinger and looking up with big fond eyes to the smile on his rugged face forbade any thought of such intrusion. A comrade of his, however, was more daring. "Oh," said the grandfather with appealing pathos, "please, please, leave me alone!"

IMPERIAL QUARTO ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY.

WITH THE PUNY AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Pundt pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications.

To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration:—Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Moir's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000 whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters

CHAPTER III.
Twenty years have passed, and we are on the deck of a whaling schooner, called "The Heckla," lying off the coast of Greenland. The captain is a strange man of whom little is known. He is called "Jan the Icelander," and the impression is that he came from Iceland.
He is one of that sort of whom sailors say,
"They've got neither father nor mother," meaning that there seems to be nobody belonging to them.

But he is as good as whaler as ever throw a dagger, and a good man as well. Indeed, he is the recognized referee of that whole whaling fleet. What with the ice and the fog, and the hard work, and the bad shots, the men think they want a drop of "blue ruin" sometimes to keep their spirits going; but if ever there is a rumour over the drink, it's Jan the Icelander who has to settle it; and if ever there is a crime and blood is split, it's Jan who has to be judge and jury.

This man, this saint of that lawless community on the Greenland seas, is Larry Clough.
He is now fifty-five years of age, and looks much older. He has never attempted to return home, having been waiting for the message promised by his wife. At first he used to watch for the mail boats which brought letters to the men, but nothing ever came for him. And when an English whaler put up alongside he would be the first to board her, with "How's the old country, shipmate?" And then, "What port, boy?" as if thinking, perhaps, that he had come from the part he came from, but no one did. On fine nights when the work of the day was done, he would lean over the bulwarks and look south over the sea, as if trying to catch sight of his own little country, to which he could return no more.

But that was long ago. Since then he has passed from ship to ship, concealing and finally losing his identity. He has had luck, the schooner "Heckla" belongs to him, and he is reputed to be rich.

At length a young Englishman has come out to the whaling. He is called Harry only, for family names count nothing where families are of no account. He is five-and-twenty years of age, and very bright and affectionate. Jan is greatly drawn to him. The young man tells him some of her love letters. Her name is Lucy, and they are to be married as soon as he returns home. All the tenderness of the old man's starved and hungry heart goes out to the young fellow.

"You speak English as well as an Englishman, Jan. Ever been in our country?" says Harry.
"Once. Yes. I was there once."

"Long ago?"

"A—many years ago."

"Ten, fifteen, as much as that?"

"Aye, or more."

"What port was it?"

"Whitby."

"You'd see changes at Whitby since then."

"No doubt."

"The railways, and the telegraphs, and—I don't know what."

"What's the railway, my lad?"

"The railway! How shall I describe it? A sort of steamship that runs on the land."

"How fast does it go—ten knots—fifteen?"

"Yes, and fifty to that, Jan."

"You must be flying like the angels then, my lad. And what's the telegraph?"

"An electrical invention for sending messages on wire. You can speak from London to Edinburgh in less than a minute now!"

"Why that's as quick as the lightning, my lad."

"It is the lightning, Jan."

"Wonderful! But I'm too old to get it into my head."

"Wouldn't you like to see it, though?"

"I'm not good enough, my lad."

"Why, what do you mean, Jan?"

"People nowadays, having the powers of angels, of gods, aren't people better than they used to be in my time, my lad?"

"Not that I know of, Jan."

"Can't say they are. In fact, some folks are always lamenting the loss of the 'good old times,' as they call them."

"But these changes you speak of, are they everywhere in England now?"

"Everywhere."

"Even in the country places?"

"Yes, even in the little country town I come from."

"Where might that be, now?" says Jan.

"Down in one of the south counties."

"What do you call the place?"

"Sixoaks! Do you know I've heard of Six-oaks? Isn't that where there's an old country church and a little country inn alongside of it?"

"It is; but every country place in England brings forth twins of that sort, you know."

"But there's the statue of some old good man standing between them, isn't there?"

"There is—the statue of good old Father Clough."

"Father Clough! That's the name. I thought I should remember it."

"You seem to know a good deal about my country, Jan."

"Do I, my lad? Well, I ought to, if I don't. I've had English sailors off and on all my life, you see."

"Some of them from our parts, too?"

"Yes, one."

"A poor man, who seemed to be in trouble of some sort."

"In trouble?"

"Well, I thought so—there was a kind of mystery about him—he never went back to England that I know of."

"What was his name?"

"He never told me that. We called him the Englishman."

"How long ago is it? It is twenty years ago?"

"Maybe twenty."

"What was his age—old?—young?"

"If he is living now he will be—well, about my own age, my lad."

"Ever tell you of any friends he had in Sixoaks?"

"Yes, he used to talk of his wife and a young child."

"I know—I think I know. What was his character out here?"

"A quiet, peaceable man, I think."

"But he drank, didn't he?"

"Never a drop while he was here."

"Must be the same, though—must have been Larry Clough."

"I can just remember him; but I was a child
when he left our parts."

"Then you would hardly recognise the man
if you saw him now?"

"Hardly. Was he long out here?"

"A—many years. When a cruise was over he passed from ship to ship."

"What became of him at last?"

"God knows, my lad! You soon lose sight of a man at the whaling."

"I dare say he died by this time."

"Aye, dead enough, no doubt."

"Well, that is the best that could have happened to him."

"Do you think so, now?"

"I do. You're right, Jan. There was a mystery about the man."

"I thought as much, my lad."

"He had committed a crime, a murder—manslaughter, at all events."

"Was it ever found out?"

"Yes; suspicion fastened on him at last but he had gone before that."

"Then his wife—she was dragged into the mesh, too?"

"She was, poor thing. The dead man and he had a dispute at an auction. Some hours later the old sexton going home late at night heard a cry, and came upon Larry's wife in the darkness, alone, and much agitated. Next morning it was found that Larry had died."

"Has nothing been heard of him since?"

"Nothing. Justice was slow in those days—no telegraphs, no railways, you know."

"So they gave up the search, did they?"

"Well, there was a warrant for his arrest, but heaven knows if anybody wanted to catch him."

"I suppose the thing has got forgotten at last."

"Quite forgotten."

"Nobody talks of it now?"

"Nobody."

"Then if my old shipmate were living still and thought of going back—"

"There is hardly anybody alive who remembers anything about it."

"I think if I were he—that is to say, if he still alive—I almost think I should be tempted —but his poor wife, did she never hear from him?"

"Never, that I know of."

"My comrades used to send things though.
I've seen him myself—money and things to someone—somewhere. Did nothing ever reach her?"

"No. Should have heard of it if it had. Fact, we always thought it strange he never tried to communicate with her."

"Perhaps he was waiting for a sign from her first to tell him it was safe; that the cloud had blown over; that he might write at all events."

"Well, yes, perhaps. Of course he wasn't going to run his head into a halter."

"Not that he was a man to be afraid of anything, but he couldn't want his wife and child to be disgraced."

"So you think he was that sort of man do you, Jan?"

"I think I think I do. But do you know you are the first that ever came from my old friend's country?"

"Am I? It would have been strange enough, too, if he'd been here still and I'd been the first to come upon him."

"Wouldn't it? What questions he would have asked you after all those years—about his wife, for instance. She's alive, I suppose, isn't she?"

"Ah, no!"

"No?"

"She's gone, poor soul!"

"Gone?"

"Dead and buried these ten years at least."

"Ten years—dead—buried."

"Pined away seemingly—waiting, waiting—for the word that never came."

"They had been sitting in the cabin, and the old man had risen to his feet and then dropped back, and his head had fallen on the table."

"What's this? Fainted? Hellos, there!"

"No, no, my lad, it's nothing. I'm all right.
You touched me on a tender place, and came to hear of it just as it might be this way. I was on a long cruise, and was thinking of going back when the news reached me. A shipmate came along and told me—like this exactly, as it might be you telling me now—and she was dead and buried."

"Then that's why you are not going home,
this cruise, is it?"

"I've nobody to go to now. Home is home to me no longer."

"And maybe that's why Larry Clough and you became such friends; you had that much in common with the poor miserable creature, anyhow."

"Just so, just so! You say my old comrade left a child behind him in the old country?"

"He did—a girl."

"She is alive, isn't she?"

"Alive, and well and hearty."

"When her mother died she would be quite young, wouldn't she?"

"A girl of fourteen or fifteen, perhaps."

"Then some good soul must have taken care of the child?"

"Yes, her old nurse looked after her."

"They never wanted for anything, did they?"

"No, the father had been in low water, but they had a little left—some legacy from the father's other."

"She'll be quite a young woman now."

"Oh quite—quite."

"Married perhaps, eh?"

"Not yet—but maybe she will be before long."

"The young fellow dives into his pocket, and brings out a crumpled letter."

"Look here, Jan. Came by the last mail.
Don't mind showing you. You'll not laugh at me, will you? See both sides crossed—just like a woman, isn't it? Expecting you home—"

"The darling! Such a weepy, weepy time since you went away—not half so long as it's been up here, but my bottom dollar on that."

"Jan nervously holds out his hand and says in a quivering voice, 'Might I now—would you let an old fellow—I used to get that sort of thing myself once—just to bring the memory of old times—eh?'"

"Let you look at the letter? Of course I will. There you are," and he puts the letter into the old man's hands."

Jan grasps it in his trembling fingers and tries to read. "Come home to me soon, dear Lucy. But his eyes are wet, and he cannot see."

"So this is your sweetheart's writing, is it?
What a beautiful hand!"

"You should see the girl herself, Jan. She's the dearest little woman in the county."

"And her name is Lucy?"

"Yes, and a sweet little name it is, isn't it, Jan?"

"The sweetest name in all the world!"

"Jan, I'll drink your health in a stiff glass of grog before I go."

"Tall, isn't she, my lad? Tall and straight as a standard rose."

"Exactly! And her hair—"

"Fair, isn't it? Yellow hair with a golden blow."

"That's Lucy to the life. You might have known the girl herself, Jan—you've hit her off exactly."

"I was talking of your sweetheart, my lad, but I was thinking of my wife, God rest her."

"The young fellow in the sweet selfishness of love feels nothing but his own happiness and goes on talking of the girl at home—how everybody loves her and pets her and 'spoils' her."

Jan listens eagerly and his eyes glisten.

"Then her father's crime hasn't overclouded the girl's life as it did her mother's?" he says.

"Nobody has ever thought of remembering it against her."

"But, the relatives of the murdered man—I suppose he had relatives?"

"The young fellow nods his head."

"They can't forget it, can they?"

"To tell you the truth, I am the only relative left behind him."

"You!" Jan has risen to his foot.

"I'm his son."

"Then the man my old comrade killed—"

"He was my father."

There is silence for a moment, and then the old man says, "You must forgive me, my lad."

"For talking of my old friend. It's only natural, I must hate the very name and thought of him."

"No, to tell you the truth I don't hate him,"

"You don't?"

"I can't."

"How so?"

"You've heard me talk of my sweetheart?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's Larry Clough's daughter.
We're going to be married, and that's why I came out here. My father had ships at the whaling, and I came to square up his old business. And now that it's done I'm going home to be married and settle down."

"EMPEROR OF JAPAN" Comdr. H. Pybus, R.N.R. WEDNESDAY, 15th May, 1901.
 "EMPEROR OF CHINA" Comdr. E. Archibald, R.N.R. WEDNESDAY, 15th June, 1901.
 "EMPEROR OF INDIA" Comdr. O. P. Marshall, R.N.R. WEDNESDAY, 28th June, 1901.

THE magnificent TWIN-SCREW STEAMSHIPS of this Line pass through the famous INLAND SEA OF JAPAN, and usually make the voyage YOKOHAMA to VANCOUVER in 12 DAYS, saving THREE DAYS to a WEEK in the Trans-Pacific journey and make connection at Vancouver with the PALATIAL TRANS-CONTINENTAL TRAINS of the CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY, which leave daily, and cross the Continent FROM THE PACIFIC TO THE ATLANTIC WITHOUT CHANGE. Close connection is made at Montreal, Quebec, Halifax, New York and Boston with all Trans-Atlantic Lines which passengers to Great Britain and the Continent are given choice of.

Passengers booked through to all principal ports and AROUND THE WORLD. Return tickets to various points at reduced rates. Good for 4, 6, 9, and 12 months.
 SPECIAL RATES (First class only) granted to Missionaries, Members of the Naval, Military, Diplomatic, and Civil Services, and to European Officials in the Service of China and Japan Governments.

The attractive features of this Company's route embrace its PALATIAL STEAMSHIPS (second to none in the World), the LUXURANCE OF ITS TRANS-CONTINENTAL TRAINS (the Company having received the highest award for same at recent Chicago World's Exhibition), and the diversity of MAGNIFICENT MOUNTAIN AND LAKE SCENERY through which the Railway passes.
 THE DINING CARS and MOUNTAIN HOTELS of this route are owned and operated by the Company, and their appointments and Cuisine are unequalled.

SPECIAL EXTRA SERVICE.

The Company's Steamers "FARTAR" and "ATHENIAN" have now been placed on the Line between CHINA and JAPAN PORTS and VANCOUVER, as additional sailings, leaving Hongkong as follows:—
 "FARTAR" 3,882 Tons. Comdr. H. Mowat. On or about 1st June.
 Taking Cargo and Passengers for all points in CANADA and UNITED STATES.
 In addition to their excellent Saloon Passenger accommodation, these steamers are especially adapted for 3rd CLASS EUROPEAN PASSENGERS, and usually make the run between YOKOHAMA and VANCOUVER in 14 Days.
 For further information, Maps, Guides, Books, Rates of Passage and Freight, apply to

CHRONICLE AND DIRECTORY
FOR

CHINA, JAPAN, COREA, INDO-CHINA, SIAM, STRAITS SETTLEMENTS, MALAY STATES, NETHERLANDS, INDIA, PHILIPPINES, BORNEO, &c.,

FOR 1901.

THE THIRTY-NINTH ANNUAL ISSUE.

The DIRECTORY covers the whole of the ports and cities of the Far East, from Netherlands India to Siberia, in which European reside.

Not only is the Directory as full and complete in each case as it can be made, but each Colony Port, or Settlement is prefaced by a DESCRIPTION, carefully revised each year, most of which will serve as accurate GUIDES for the TOURIST, giving every detail in connection with the places, their History, Topography, &c., &c.

The Information in these Descriptions, consisting of a hundred interesting articles, packed with facts concisely set out, and containing statistics of the Trade of each Country and Port, would alone suffice to fill a large volume.

THE NEW FRENCH REMEDY

TRADE THERAPION MARK

This successful and highly popular remedy, as employed in the Continental Hospitals by Broussais, Boissier, Jobert, Val-pierre, and others, combines all the desiderata to be sought in a medicine of the kind, and surpasses everything hitherto employed.

THERAPION No. 1 is a remarkable short-acting remedy, removing discharges from the urinary organs, effectually expelling infectious matter, the use of which does irreparable harm by laying the foundation of stricture and other serious diseases. In dysentery, piles, irritation of the lower bowel, leucorrhoea, catarrh, and some of the more irritating complaints of this kind, it will be found unusually efficacious, affording prompt relief where other well-tried remedies have been powerless.

THERAPION No. 2 is a pur-gative of the blood, purifying the system, and relieving the joints, secondary symptoms, gout, rheumatism, and all diseases for which it has been too much a fashion to employ mercury, nuxvomica, &c., to the destruction of suffering the whole system through the blood, and thoroughly eliminating every poisonous matter from the body.

THERAPION No. 3 is for net-erous, impaired vitality, debility, and all the distressing consequences of early error, excess, residence in hot, unhealthy climates, &c. It possesses surprising power in restoring strength and vigour to the debilitated.

THERAPION is sold by all the principal Chemists and Druggists throughout the world. In order to state which of the three numbers is required, and observe above Trade Mark, which is a fac-simile of word "THERAPION" as it appears on the Government Stamp (to which letters on a red ground) affixed to every package by order of Her Majesty's Hon. Commissioners, and without which it is a forgery.

Sold by A. S. WATSON & CO., LIMITED,
Hongkong, China and Manila.
